

Associated Christian Schools Continuing the ACS Millennials Project 2021/2022 ... meet more millennials ...

August 2021

Acknowledgement...

ACS thanks those schools which responded to the invitation to contribute to the recently published 23 INFLUENCERS.

These stories validate the findings of the Cardus Education Survey Australia research that our millennials are making significant contributions to the common good of Australian society.

A new invitation....

ACS invites member schools to contribute to the next stage of this ongoing project, “meet more millennials”. The goal is the same: to continue promoting alumni outcomes of Christian schooling in keeping with the findings of The Cardus Education Survey Australia report 2020, across all sectors of Australian education, millennial graduates contribute to the common good by promoting flourishing and sustaining civic life in various ways.

Project context ...

The value of a school’s legacy cannot be underestimated. Legacies have to be stated in human terms, not in terms of buildings or grounds.

ACS strategy is to identify millennials who are influencing society for the common good, and by their stories promote Christian schooling as exemplary schooling.

ACS Millennials Project is loosely similar to Christianity Today’s project “33 under 33” which identified young millennials uniquely contributing in business and non-profits, media organisations and ministries, academia and the arts.

Nominating ...

1. We seek further nominations for the continuing ACS Millennials Project from our member schools
2. We invite you to identify from among your own alumni, those who are beginning to make a mark in their chosen field, trade or profession.
3. We’ve made it easy for you to nominate: attached is a Continuing ACS Millennials Project Nomination Form to help member schools identify alumni you wish to nominate; please ensure you have secured the permission of your nominees. (Acknowledgement: this form is based on that used by Citipointe Christian College Brisbane for its Alumni Hall of Fame)
4. ACS will check the nominations for suitability, with selected alumni identified as alumni of ACS member schools, with their individual school also acknowledged.
5. As before, the final selection of ACS Millennials will be published.
